Coffee beans and lavender buds are ground together and rubbed into the rind giving this cheese notes of butterscotch and caramel.

Beehive Cheese Company creamery sits in the forested Wasatch Mountains in northern Utah where wildflowers are abundant in the summer. Supplementing the feed with alfalfa hay and corn, the Jersey and Holstein herd produce milk that's perfect for cheese making.

A blend of roasted coffee beans are ground together with French Superior lavender buds and hand rubbed onto the young cheeses. The result is a crumbly cheese with a lactic flavours infused with notes of butterscotch and caramel.
